

The “Energy Saving Quest for Schools”, are a team with considerable experience in education and home energy efficiency, who have combined our skills to create this progressive system.

We believe our user-friendly system brings together many of the important issues of our time, with goals that with strong participation can be achieved.

Environmental education in our schools, energy efficiency and reductions in home carbon emissions, with parental inclusion built into our “Quest” provide the three main goals we have targeted.

Our “Quest” facility here at www.schoolsquestusa.com gives teachers, learners and parents, a workable platform for all three to participate. Guided by over 40 years’ experience across all aspects of the building industry and fully qualified in the energy efficiency of homes (Domestic Energy Assessment qualified), combined with many years college lecturing make up the foundation of our team.

With the effects of climate change already beginning to affect our present world, and which most certainly will become a major hazard to our futures, the need for early awareness through environmental education is vital to produce the experts of the future that we will surely need.
